PRACTICALLY ARRANGED. Haulon and Abell Will Probably Sign a Copartnership Agreement To-Day-How the Players May Be Assigned—Freedman Refuses to Buy Out the Louisville Club.

The big baseball deal between the Brooklyn and Baitimore clubs was virtually closed last night, although the persons directly interested did not sign a written agreement. F. A. Abell of the Brooklyn Club and Edward Hanlon of the Baltimore Club were in conference all yes terday afternoon, with the result that they reached an understanding as to a basis which the two clubs can be con-Vonderhorst was confined to collented. his bed all day, and Ebbets, who has been suffering from a severe cold, was compelled to go home early. With these absent Hanlon and Abell fixed up the details as well as they could, but they refrained from signing a copartnership agreement until to-day, when Vonderhorst and Ebbets may be able to meet them. When Abell and Haplon ended their long confab, which took place in the Hoffman House, they both looked

We have practically agreed upon terms," said Hanlon, "but will not make the deal until Mr. Vonderhorst meets us to-morrow." As Hanion has always done about as he pleased because of the implicit confidence reposed in him by Vonderhorst, it is almost safe to say that the latter will agree to whatever details Hanlon and Abell have arranged.

Everything is favorable," said Abeil, "and I see no reason why the deal should not be made. Hanlon and I have agreed on every point and we are merely waiting for Mr. Von derhorst to ratify what we have done. No contract has been signed and no papers have en drawn up, but all that can be quickly done later.

When the articles have been signed, the arrangement by which the two clubs will consolidate will result in Brooklyn having what, on paper, appears to be the greatest team in the country. Hanlon will be the manager, with absolute control of According to the present plan will bring the pick of the Baltimores to Washington Park to be framed into a team rith the best men of last season's Brooklyns Many slates were discussed in the corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday by baseball men, but the one said to be looked upon with particular favor by Hanlon is the following:

Fighers, McJames, Hughes, Corbett, Maul, Ken-nedy and Dunn; catchers, Clarke, Smith and Ryan; first hase, Kelley; second base, Daly; third base, D. Montreville; short stop, Jennings; outfielders, lones, Griffin, Keeler and Anderson; extra infielder, With these men wearing Brooklyn uniforms man, McGraw and Ball; outfielders, Holmes, Brodie and Shechard.

Pitchers, Miller, Yeager, Nops, Kitson, Howell, aston and McKenna; catchers, Robinson, Grimmi, Crisham; infediers, McGann, Lachance, Hallian, McGraw and Ball; outfielders, Holmes, Brodie

It is hardly probable that Robinson and McGraw will be brought to Brooklyn by Hanlon, for the reason that they have business interests in Baltimore which they do not care to leave, but by making Robinson manager of the new Baltimore team, it is believed that Hanlon's place will be ably filled. Glancing over the material of both teams and realizing that Hanlon will have bractical supervision over each, baseball cranks cannot fail to see that both cities will have formidable teams. Of course Hanlon may radically change the above slates, but at present they are pretty nearly correct. While Abell and Hanlon did not give out any figures on which to base the settlement of the deal between the clubs, it is generally believed that the two clubs will agree to divide equally whatever profits there may be after the receipts and expenses of both clubs have been pooled. They are so confident of making big money at Washington Park that they want an even break and or tayors.

They are so confident of making big money at Washington Park that they want an even break and no lavors.

James A, Hart of Chicago gave out a good line on the situation last night when lessaid to the reporter of The Sun:

"A change to bring about two eight-club leagues would be beneficial to the game. While I do not say that the thing can be accomplished right now, there is considerable time between the present and next spring in which isome sort of an arrangement can be made. It is simply a business proposition. That's all, If certain clubs do not regard it favorably, why, we will go on as we are, with twelve clubs in the circuit. Whatever is done, everybody must be satisfied."

In short, the secret wire pulling of the magnates has brought the case down to this: Every club in the League is willing to enter into the scheme to establish two circuits, except Louisville and Washington. The latter are willing in a way, too, but they believe they have a chance to dictate terms. If they persist in holding up the deal, there is every indication that the magnates will conclude to go ahead with them by establishing a ten-club dirent. In such an arrangement Louisville and Washington would have little chance of establishing a business half as prolitable as if they were in another circuit of eight clubs composed of cities in their own profitable as if they were in another ght clubs composed of cities in their own profitable as if they were in another circuit of eight cubs composed of cities in their own class.

As an indication of how Louisville and Washington are trying to get in out of the wet, several magnates pointed out some green statistical evidence last night. They showed that the Louisville delegates. Pullian. Dahlen and Dreyfuss, called on Freedman vesterday morning and offered to sell the Louisville players and franchise to the New York club for $50,000 eash. The Louisville men admitted the truth of this statement and said that they tried to induce Freedman to buy them out so that he could not only strengthen his team with the addition of such players as Fred Clarke, Dexter. Cunningham, Wagner, Frazer, Mcboe and Kittridge, but he could also put another team in Louisville to enter the proposed American Association, or could sell the franchise' to some other city. But, according to the Southerners, Freedman refused their offer point blank and also informed them that, while he did make an offer of $10,000 for Clarke not long age, he was now unwilling to renew it. This piece of business, when it came to the ears of the magnates, was regarded as amusing. The Louisville men were at once requested not to make any more propositions; that if the League for them to set a price on their franchise. Wagner of Washington also showed where he stord when he declared that, in his estimation, two leagues might be framed, providing the first consisted of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg and Detroit; the other to include Providence, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Baitimore. Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis and Indianayolis. When some of the magnates heard of Wagner's plan they went out into the street to get some fresh air. The opinion was that the Washington man was getting ready to make a stand for big money.

While it is a fact that this circuit business has not come up for an official discussion before the league has a body, there have been several height, before the star chamber that sh tlass.
As an indication of how Louisville and Wash-n to elect a new board of six members, such existed a year ago. He made an unexpect-y strong plea for such a move, because it sementated to protect the interests of the election the circuit, much more than could be consent the board was made up of a smaller make.

the case if the board was made up of a smaller humber.

Bolson found a vigorous opponent in Abell of Brocklyn. The latter seemed to have come prepared to meet the Issue, and urged that the board membership be reduced to three. His action was taken to mean that he was infinited to living any of the first hand his friends, but in certain guarters it was regarded as an unconscious admission that the circuit should be reduced to eight cubs. A vote was ordered, and to the surprise of all it stood it to 5 in favor of Abell's mean, New York, Brocklyn, Philadelphia, Ballimere, Washington and Pittsburg standing teacher in the majority. Sodon, who was in the chair and had east New York's vote, descinct to do the same for Boston, saying that he did not care to be mixed up in the matter. He was urged to go on record, however, and when he voted to increase the board membership there was a deadlock. All of a sudden it began to days on Abell that something was in the wind and he bromptly withdrew his vote, making it to a in favor of Robison's idea, so that six members—Robison, Brush, Soden, Hart, Rogers and Young—were elected to the board.

The Lengthewas in seasion nearly all of yesterday and the delegates gave out that they were truestering the Philadelphia state-receipts and the delegates gave out that they were truestering the Philadelphia rate-frequents be troevered to convince the magnates that with 25-cent hall in his town and a setting of 12's course for every ticket of admission soid Philadelphia had paid over more money to the other clubs than it had received in all of the eithes on the road. He pointed out that from 1869 up to the end of last season in 394 games Philadelphia paid $280,337.73 to visiting clubs and received in that time $127,883.37. These games on 25-cent admissions at home and a 12½-cent settlement yielded an average of $390.75 to visiting clubs, whereas in 1852 on a lifty-cent tariff seventy-three games netted an average of $381,30. Col. Rogers had such a strong argument that when the League adjourned for dinner he had won over several clubs which had been against him. His idea is to be permitted to continue paying 12% cents a head to visiting clubs instead of cutting his grand stand receipts in two.

In the corridors there was talk of several deals, Wagner of Washington said that he hoped to secure McGraw from Baltimore. The Louisville Club sold Pitcher Frazer to Philadelphia, Walter Wilmot, manager of the Minneapolis Club, purchased George Smith from St. Louis for $200 and also bought Abbaticchlo from Philadelphia for a similar amount. Pittsburg made a bid of $2,500 for McGuire of Washington, but Wagner could not see it.

Billy Nash called upon Freedman suprised Nash with the information that he was not wanted, because in an interview Nash had been quoted as saying that he wished to have control of the players and work in harmony with John B. Day. Frank Selee made arrangements to take two teams of ball players South during the winer to play exhibition games. He will have among others Donovan, Rester, Dowd and Joe Kelley.

The League was still in session at 12 o'clock last night.

Stark Wins the Class B Championship-Taylor and Smith a Tie

J. Byron Stark won the class B amateur billiard champlonship last night at the Knickerbocker A. C. Theatre after the most sensational match seen in many years. To the surprise of all, Taylor held the lead all through the final game, but Stark finally pulled out a plucky uphill fight, winning by 5 points. There were odds of 10 to 7 offered on Stark before the game, and a majority of the big crowd of enthusiasts that packed the the-atre seemed confident that he would win easily from Taylor. Stark seemed nervous and anx ions, while Taylor was fairly brimming over with confidence. The former won the bank but missed the opening shot, and then Taylor gave a foretaste of the skill he showed later by starting his score with a splendid break of 31.

Up to the ninth inning Stark had made just 22 points and he seemed more anxious than ever, for Taylor had piled up 71. Then Stark got in his first good play with a run of 33, but the Westerner immediately came back at him with 31 and added 14 more the next inning against 1 for Stark. The New Yorker afterward struck a bad streak again and Taylor increased his lead to nearly 100. With the twenty-first inning a long stern chase began, but the Chicago man kept making the carroms almost as fast as Stark. The score was 261 to 253 in favor of the Westerner, and it was dollars to doughnuts he would win But Stark never despaired, and two runs of and it was dollars to doughouts he would win.
But Stark never despaired, and two runs of 26 and 17 against two "goose eggs" brought him up close to the end. He slipped up on a difficult single-cushion shot, and left the balls, so it seemed, easy for him to make the last nine he needed. Taylor played with great precision and gathered in four, and on his fifth shot, a short draw, he counted, but failed to drive the balls out of balk, to his great disgust. The balls were then all bunched, and Stark easily made the three points he needed and finished his plucky uphill struggle amid a perfect storm of cheers. The score:

Highest runs, 31, 74, 23, 20, 20 and 10.

The Poggenburg-Smith game in the afternoon furnished another sensational match and close finish, like that between the two Westerners on Thursday afternoon. Poggenburg complained of the balls before the match began, and refused to even try them when he found that the new set promised had not arrived. In the first sixteen innings he seemed utterly indifferent, but then the balls began to roll to suit him and he got into the game with a jump. He finally won by a score of 300 to 293. The score:

Poggenburg—3, 1, 01, 1, 1, 0, 0, 5, 0, 2, 0, 0, 8, 0.

The final standing of the players follows:

Stark gets first prize and both of the gold medals offered for the best single average and grand average, while Taylor wins the gold matchbox offered for the highest run. The tie for second and third prizes will be played off on Monday night between Taylor and Smith.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN. A Lively Meeting of the State Board of

Officers Expected. A lively session of the New York State Division Board of Officers, L. A. W., is expected at Rochester to-day. It is the annual meeting of the division, at which the newly elected officers formally accept office and the policy of the division is declared on national issues by the lection of delegates to the national assembly. The spicy features of this year's meeting are apt to be developed over two amendments, one of which puts the State Bacing Board out of $2,500 a year office of Secretary-Treasurer shall again become elective instead of a "good behavior" tenure. On the two-thirds vote which is necessary to amend the constitution it may be that the to amend the constitution if may be that the proposed amendment on giving up racing will be lost. Should this be the case, it will strengthen the pro-racing side of the conferees and perhaps make a difference in the instruction of the delegates to the national assembly. It is recognized, however, that when, in 1883, an amendment to the constitution which cut out racing was offered by the New York State Division, it was overwhelmingly defeated. I. B. Potter was the father of that resolution, and while he and the other officers of the division would like to see the League give up the control, it is possible that the delegates elected will be instructed to play notities at the next national assembly and not again be the fathers of a lost and hopeless cause.

It has been rumored for some time that the National Executive Committee of the League, which was instructed last February to investigate and report whether there is in existence any other organization capable of controlling cycle racing, will report that there is not President Potter recognizes that, as the chief executive. he must support and enforce the constitution. Therefore he upholds Chairman Mott in all his doings, and as Chairman of the Executive Committee he may, feel obliged to make a report that will favor the League because it in all his doings, and as Chairman of the Executive Committee he may, feel obliged to make a report that will favor the League because proposed amendment on giving up racing make a report that will favor the League con-tinuing in control. Whatever is done at Rech-ester to-day will have an important bearing on this topmost question in the League, because New York and Pennsylvania have the greatest number of votes in the national body.

Lovers of indoor football witnessed an interesting game at Durland's Riding Academy last night, when the elevens from the Thirteenth Street High School and College of the City of New York, 1902, lined up for play. The academy was crowded to its utmost capacity with the followers of both institutions, and the various school cries were rendered just as if various school cries were rendered just as if the game was being played on an open field. The High School lads put up an excellent game, and their interference was excellent. Their line was also strong, and they held the hard rushes of their openents in finestyle. The fumbling at critical stages cost C. C. N. Y. a lot of ground. The interference of the latter was slow in forming, and the backs were slow in starting. In the first half High School scored a touchdown through the excellent playing of Stewart. A few minutes before time was called for the second half Sterling got the ball on a fumble and ran thirty yards for a touchdown for High School. The final score was: High School, 10; C. C. N. Y., 0.

B. A. Smith and Grant Notman, with 4 points allow ance, were to have been the contending team last night in the handball tournament of the Crescent A. C. Notman, however, sent word that he was ill and could not keep his engagement. Smith pluckily agreed to play his team's opponents. C. Hies and W. F. Bichards, S. points, single-handed. Although Smith put up a willant defence, he was defeated by accres of 21 to 18 and 21 to 7.

Goddard Disqualified for Fouling McCoy. PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.-McCov and Goddard put up what was really an uninteresting glove contest at the Arena to-night. The bout was stopped at the close of the fifth round. having hit McCoy in a clinch. The referee disqualified the Barrier champion. The first two rounds savored of a love fewst. The only thing that made up for the tameness at this point was McCoy's splendid science. The third started very fast, both landing some good lefts. At the close, however, McCoy began to let himself out, and he hit hard and often, the round being much in his favor. McCoy opened the fourth with offensive tactics, landing his right and left. Goddard showed signs of thring, and it was prophesied that he could not last if McCoy kept at him. Goddard seemed to be in fair shape when he came up for the fifth round. McCoy was taking no chances, however, and went at his man for keeps, landing two left hand jabs, stunning the old champion. The latter came back with a hard right, and then McCoy landed a right-hand upper cut, flooring and dazing Joe. When Goddard arose he ran into a clinch, and in this clinch Goddard hit McCoy. The referee called a foul and stopped the bout. There was a row before the men went on. Goddard would not stand for McCoy's hand being wrapped with tape, but finally gave in. qualified the Barrier champion. The first two HORSEWHIPPED BY MRS. LEWIS. Mr. Bedle Put Young Lewis Out of a Hall and Mrs. Lewis Resents It.

MATAWAN, N. J., Dec. 16.-William E. Bedle, a prominent young Republican of Keyport, was horsewhipped in front of the Keyport Post office last evening by Mrs. Rebecca Lewis of that place. At an entertainment held at Armory Hall on Wednesday evening Mrs. Lewis's son Aseph made a commotion and Bedle, who was in charge of the affair, ejected him from the room. The lad Immediately went to his home and told his mother that Bedle had kieked and abused him without cause. Mrs. Lewis was greatly angered.

and told his mother that Bedle had kicked and abused him without cause. Mrs. Lewis was greatly angered.

Last night Bedle was standing just outside the Post Office door awaiting the sorting of the mail. In the crowd present was Mrs. Lewis, She espied Bedle and confronted him, accusing him of beating and abusing her son. Then she drew from the folds of her skirts a rawhide whip and struck Bedle a stinging blow. Bedle grasped her, and managed in the scuffle which ensued to secure the whip. A large crowd gathered, and for a time the excitement was intense. After being disarmed Mrs. Lewis left the place. Bedle emerged from the affair hatless and out of breath.

A Testimonial to Gen. Penrsall at Glen Cove. On Wednesday evening the rector of St. Paul's parish, the Rev. John W. Gammack of Glen Cove, L. L. entertained the members of the vestry at a dinner given by him in the rectory. The occasion was the presenting of a loving cup to Gen. Pearsall, the senior warden, who, this year, celebrated his liftieth year of active service as vestryman and warden of St. Paul's. The presentation address was made by Mr. William M. Dudgeon, the junior warden. The rector also made a short address, and when he said that the loving cup was only a token of the universal love that the parish here to its senior warden. he voiced the sentiment not only of those present, but also that of the whole community. The cup itself was magnificent, the best that could be bought, and bore the following inscription, beautifull in its simplicity:

"Presented to James Bucharan Pearsall by the parishioners of St. Paul's Church, Glen Clove, L. L. to commemorate his fiftieth year of service as Paul's parish, the Rev. John W. Gammack of

LAWSON WANTS TO BE REINSTATED. Says Comptroller Coler Put Him Out of Office Without Just Cause. Upon the application of Benjamin Lawson, Supreme Court Justice Ward, in Brooklyn, yes-terday granted an order to show cause why Comptroller Coler should not reinstate Mr. Lawson as a collector of fees in the Wallabout

Market. Mr. Lawson was appointed a collector by former City Works Commissioner Alfred T.
White. When consolidation took place he was transforred to the Finance begrartment. He was dismissed on Aug 23, and avers that his dismissal was illegal, as he was a civil service appointee and that no charges were preferred against him.

At 11:30 o'cleek on the morning of Aug.
23. he said. 'I entered the office, and Comptroller Coler said to me. You don't come off until 12 o clock. 'What don't? I seked, and he said. 'The charges.' I was then sent before the Deputy Comptroller, who asked me to bale ance my books. I told him I couldn't do so then, and he then said. 'Then you plead guilty to incompetency.' I was then dismissed.'

Mr. Lawson avers that his books and accounts were in proper shape and that his dismissal was caused by a tramped-up charge. Comptroller Coler has twenty days to show cause. by former City Works Commissioner Alfred T
